

Uncle May's Produce — A Market for Black Growers and Makers

Store 1 of the first data and distribution platform for Black food consumption. Built to put Black producers on the shelf, into distribution, and in front of real demand.

Potlikker funds the producers. Uncle May's gives them the market. Together that is capital plus market access — the combination that lets growers and makers reach buyers, get paid, and keep value in the community.

What Your Producers Get

Shelf & Distribution

A real, established retail outlet and distribution channel in Hyde Park — a high-income, high-intent Black market with more than $8M in proven annual revenue.

Demand Data

We show producers what sells, where, and when — so they plan production on signal instead of guesswork.

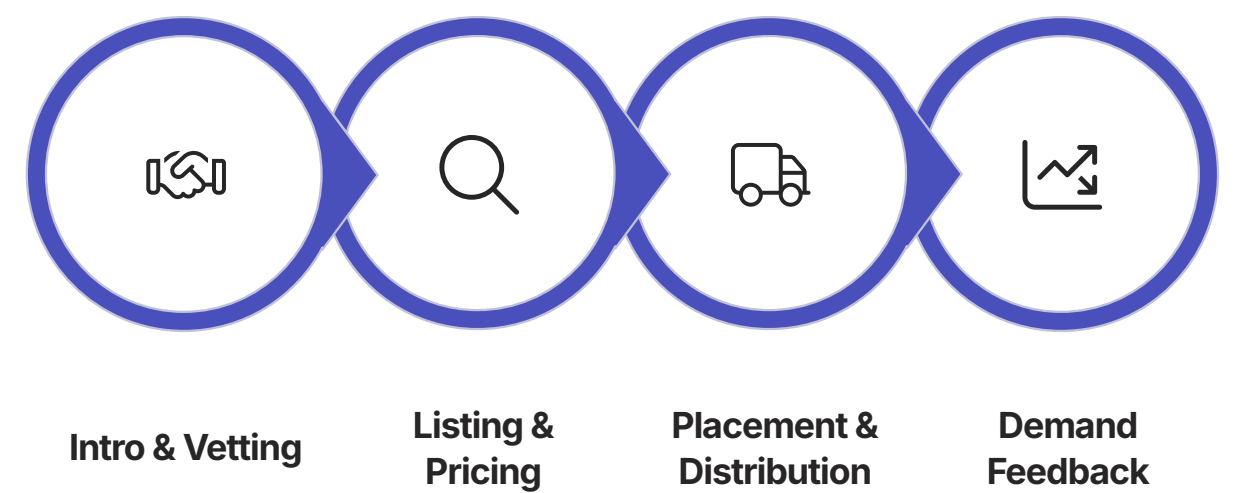

Fair Terms

Terms designed to keep value with the grower, so ownership and margin stay with the people doing the work.

Room to Grow

This is Store 1 of a planned 82-store rollout — the shelf expands as we do.

How Onboarding Works

We are building this pipeline now and have room for Potlikker's producers in the first cohorts.

Why It Fits Potlikker

Potlikker's mission is market access and community ownership for socially and economically disadvantaged producers. That is exactly what our platform delivers. Your capital helps producers build capacity. Our shelf, distribution, and data give them somewhere to sell and the signal to grow. Value circulates in the community — which is the whole point.

Why We Are a Stable Partner

Proven Asset

Acquiring an established store with more than $8M revenue — not a build from scratch.

Experienced Operator

General manager with two prior Chicago grocery exits.

Backed

SBA-financed and funded for the build — producers have a buyer that is here to stay.

Let's Map a First Cohort

I would welcome the chance to sit down with you, identify a first group of your producers to bring onto the platform, and make sure the terms genuinely serve the grower.
